Dear Jim,

7/16/79

This is the second instalment of the coming Wiseman deposition draft of questions. It goes through what in the drafts I do not identify at the first, whether or not he and Betsy do, unmarked, unfilled relevant records from the Long bladder for which none of them would search. I will follow with records from MURKIN of which single copies have already been made. When you decide what you want to do we can copy those that are planned for use and give them identification numbers by means of which they can be retrieved rapidly during the deposition, as I suggested by Rae handling these details so you won't have to keep them in mind.

While this unread rough is probably rougher than usual from the way I've been feeling I think t at at least for the most part it will be comprehensible.

As I said earlier, we can get it retuped for you so you can have it all organized after you go over it. I think Lil can do it triple spaced, which will also give you space for notes.

I'd like to get this completed as rapidly as possible because I have a large collection of copies laid aside over a period of time that I should go over in preparation for the Hartingh part and I should go over the letters I wrote him calling the kinds of things you can use.

Of course I do not know what you intend to use of what you did not have time for of the prior suggested questions and documents but I'll go over them to see if any are appropriate to the remaining part of what I have in mind, what was in MURKIN and he did not provide.

Reminder: I think it is important to have and be able to go over the discovery material. Maybe you can't get it now until Betsy returns.

We have two interruptions coming up, each in its way pleasant. A draperer who has not come for more than a year if final due again tomorrow, so we can use the drapes for comfort and fuel conservation. Dave also is due tomorrow p.m. and I look forward to seeing him again.

There was a big hunk out of yesterday from our purchase of a fireplace stove, smmr one that fits into the fireplace and is much moreeffecient. I've not been able to do the shopping I would have liked to do so I got a standard make of good repute that a savvy friend examined for me in advance. Lil had had a little fund laid aside and had loaned it to a friend who had the need and would have had to pay a bank something like 18%. It was repaid and we've made this contribution to the energy crisis and hopefully our own comfort this coming winter. But it requires dry wood and this means I have to get someone to down trees now. I've been working toward it by clearing the ground in those areas of the woods and have that largely completed. Astounding all these with fixed concepts of ill old men! Best,
